How this could be done? -

i) by the disruption of Global trade.

ii) prevent China's access to :-

a) Resource Rich Region (Central Asia, Middle East).

b) Energy↓ Stop Chinese interaction on Chinese route.c) prevent access to maritime sphere.↓
(South China Sea, Indian Ocean)

d) prevent access to Eurasia.

e) c) to prevent to access to World Market.

* What is U.S.A Grand Strategy to contain China?

Whether it is continental sphere or maritime sphere? - b/c of its location India play an important role.

NOTE:- Infact, Entire Indian Continent will be important.↓
Both India and Pakistan will have role in U.S. policy of Containment.

What are U.S.A's policy in Continental Realm? → (Eurasian)

i) Till any of the Continental State does not invite U.S.A, U.S.A will remain an external agent. In Continental sphere U.S. will always be at a weaker End as its presence will be dependent on the other State.

Which ^{State} has the biggest importance for U.S., to ensure its presence!—

i) Pakistan!— The greatest strength of Pakistan is its location. Pakistan is known as the Zipper State in Eurasia.

↳ It connects!—

a) Central Asia

b) West Asia / Middle East.

↳ It is strategically located on Indian Ocean.

ii) India!—

— India is lying next to China. India also has strategic location in Indian Ocean.

What was U.S.A's policy after India became Independent?

— U.S.A tried its best, worked Extra mile to bring India under its sphere of influence.

India however, continued to stick to the policy of Non-Alignment.

2

* What is Non-Alignment !—

Non-Alignment is India's pro - China and Anti- U.S. posture.

U.S.A's deputy Secretary of State John Foster Dulles calls Non-Alignment as India's immorality.

Views of Shyam Sharan !—

- His book — "How India Seize the World"
- A/c to him, China is the main factor, India opted for remaining Non-Aligned. However, China compels India not to remain Non-Aligned.

* China Factor behind India opting for Non-Alignment !—

- Since, India is a democratic country, the only probable option for India was to join the Western block. However, encircled by the Communist Giants (China & USSR), India could not have join the western block. ~~At the same time~~
- At the same time India had democratic political system so joining the Communist block was not an option.
- Hence, India opted for Non-Alignment.

Q) Whether India's Non-Aligned Posture was India's Idealism? —

- No, it was India's pragmatism.

Q) Whether India's option was remaining Non-Aligned was driven by ideological concerns? — — Anti-imperialism, Anti-Colonialism, Third-Worldism.

— It is to be noted that Pt. Nehru remarked that U.S. imperialism will be worse than British Imperialism.

Such narratives can be considered as appeasement of the Socialist block.

- India's Non-Alignment, may be on Face Value driven by ideological factors, but in real sense it was driven by Geo-political consideration.

Q) When India talks about Asian Century, is it ideological or driven by Geo-political Consideration?

Geo-political Consideration — it is always advisable to have peaceful consideration with neighbours.

Why? —

we can change our friends but we can't change our neighbours.

4

Q) What are the 2 strategic alternatives available to the country, lying in the neighbourhood of Greater power?

- There are 2 options!-

i) Balancing — it is achieved either through:-

a) Internal measures / Military Power.

b) External balancing.

2 ways of External balancing!-

i) Setence / Pact / becoming an ally.

ii) Strategic Partnership.

* Difference in ally and Strategic Partnership!-

- U.S. and Japan are ally but U.S. and India are Strategic Partners

- In case of ally, they will have to enter into the war if ally is attacked.

- Strategic Partnership does not have any such binding commitments.

Can India be U.S. ally?

- NO, India is too big to be playing the role of Junior partner of U.S.A. Not only India is too big, India is too proud to play the 2nd Fiddle at the same time U.S. is not in the habit of treating allies with the sense of Equality.

Alliance was the strategy w/c was relevant during Cold War.

Why?

- B/c world was clearly divided into 2 blocks.

* What is the present scenario? -

- Present Scenario is that the world is highly dependent. Hence, Foreign Policy can't be Zero-Sum Game. Hence, Strategic Partnership is a better format for Post-Gold War. World Order.

* India - China Relation! - * 2 ways to avoid the war! -

i) Appeasement -

- Appeasement is also to avoid war. Normally, smaller country is go for Appeasement.

ii) Balance of Power. -

* India - China Relation! -

Q) Do you think that India - China relation have ever been free from the dynamics of U.S. - China relation? -

- No,

Q) What is the Geo-political context / background of India - China relations in modern times? American Geo-politics to contain regional rivals.

After Independence, there were 2 schools of thought in India w.r.t China :-

i) Sardar Patel's approach :-

- a/c to Patel, China has expansionist aim. Hence, India should seek balancing.

ii) Nehruvian Approach :-

- Even Pt Nehru knew that China had expansionist aim yet considering India's situation he preferred appeasement over balancing.

* What is the basis to say that China had expansionist aim ? -

i) Chinese Geo-politics. - in order to secure its core region China needed buffer states. Whichever country controls buffer state will have advantage in the war.

Mao made it very clear that Tibet is the palm and Five Himalayan kingdoms are the Fingers.

• 5 Himalayan Kingdoms :-

i) Arunachal Pradesh / NEFA

ii) ~~Tibet~~ Sikkim

iii) Nepal

iv) Bhutan

v) Ladakh

As such communism is expansionist ideology.

* 1962 War:-

- Q) To what extent Tibet issue has been the major factor behind 1962 war?
- Q) To what extent it would be correct to say that India - China Relations can never improve till Tibet issue is not resolved to Chinese satisfaction?
- Q) Critically Evaluate India's Tibet policy.

* Significance of Tibet:-

a) Geo-Economic Significance -

- Tibet is known as Water Tower of Asia - source of prominent Asian Rivers. like - Brahmaputra, Indus, Sutlej, Mekong and tributaries of Ganga.
- A/c to Brahma Chellany, Future wars in Asia will be Water War.
- Tibet has deposits of oil, Gas, Mineral & has rich Forest wealth.
- Tibet is also gateway of China to South Asia.

b) Geo-Strategic (Security) Importance:-

i) Insurgency / Human Rights.

ii) In present times Environmental concerns.

E.g. - China is flushing out the waste from mining activities in Brahmaputra causing Environmental Hazards downstream.

c) Geo-Political Importance :-

— Balance of Power.

Balance of Power in Asia. —

— The moment China controls Tibet the balance of Power shifts its favour and India comes under disadvantage.

That control over Tibet will also give opportunity to China, to establish control over Aksai-Chin.

Aksai-Chin will help China to access Gilgit-Baltistan, Pok to reach Arabian Sea.

This will help China to counter U.S. containment of China in maritime sphere in the East.

The presence of U.S. navy in Asia-Pacific creates Malacca dilemma for China. To overcome Malacca dilemma, China has invested in :-

a) Gwadar Port.

b) Djibouti in horn of Africa.

↳ China's 1st Naval base outside mainland.

These 2 ports will choke India's access to West Asia known as "India's - Gwadar Dilemma".

To overcome Gwadar dilemma, India is developing Suqum Port in Oman. Today the Geography of East Asia and West Asia has become inter-connected. That's why if in the East exist Eastern Quad in West lies the Western Quad.

India is present in both formations.

* Historical Evolution of 1962 War :-

i) In 1950, China occupied Tibet.

U.S. always had to meet tough challenge in the East. U.S. already lost the Chinese mainland. Since, China knew that U.S. will lose Tibet, to contain China, China brought Tibet under its control.

Since China brought Tibet under its control, U.S. started promoting insurgency in Tibet.

The only ways to promote insurgency was through India.

Hence, there was Trust Deficit b/w India and China over Tibetan issue.

India-China do not share the direct boundary. India-China boundary is actually India-Tibet Boundary.

ii) In 1962, India-China had the border war w/c resulted into - "Humiliating Defeat for India".

* What led to the Border Dispute? -

Since, China occupied Tibet the unsettled boundary b/w India and Tibet became India-China boundary dispute.

Q) What relation Tibet had with China? -

When Central Chinese Empire used to be strong, Tibet was under Chinese Sovereignty. When Central Empire used to be weak, Tibet gained Autonomy.

10

Modern Context :-

- In Modern times, China came under Imperial control though for name sake, Chinese emperor was existing.

During this phase, there was context going on b/w expanding Russian Empire and British Empire in India.

How British used to see Tibet ? -

They used to see Tibet as a Buffer Zone against expanding Russian Empire.

In 1904, Colonel Young Husband carried military Expedition to Tibet. This resulted into the defeat of Tibet, resulting into Lhasa Convention.

↳ It resulted into :-

- a) British getting special trading rights into Tibet.
- b) opening of the trade route b/w Tibet and Kalimpong.
- c) British resident Mission in Tibet.
↳ Direct Diplomatic connection b/w British and Tibetan Authority.

• In 1906, there was an agreement b/w British India and China over the status of Tibet :-

- 1) Britishers accepted Chinese sovereignty over Tibet.

b) Britishers categorise Tibet in 2 parts:-

i) inner Tibet - complete control of China.

ii) outer Tibet - touching British India.

↳ special rights of Britishers.

Why British did not incorporate Tibet in British India?

- B/c it would have been a liability. Liability means security of Tibet would have been India's responsibility. Hence, with this equation they avoided coming direct confrontation.
